Power Up With THE Jetsons™

WHAT'S WRONG WITH ROSIE!

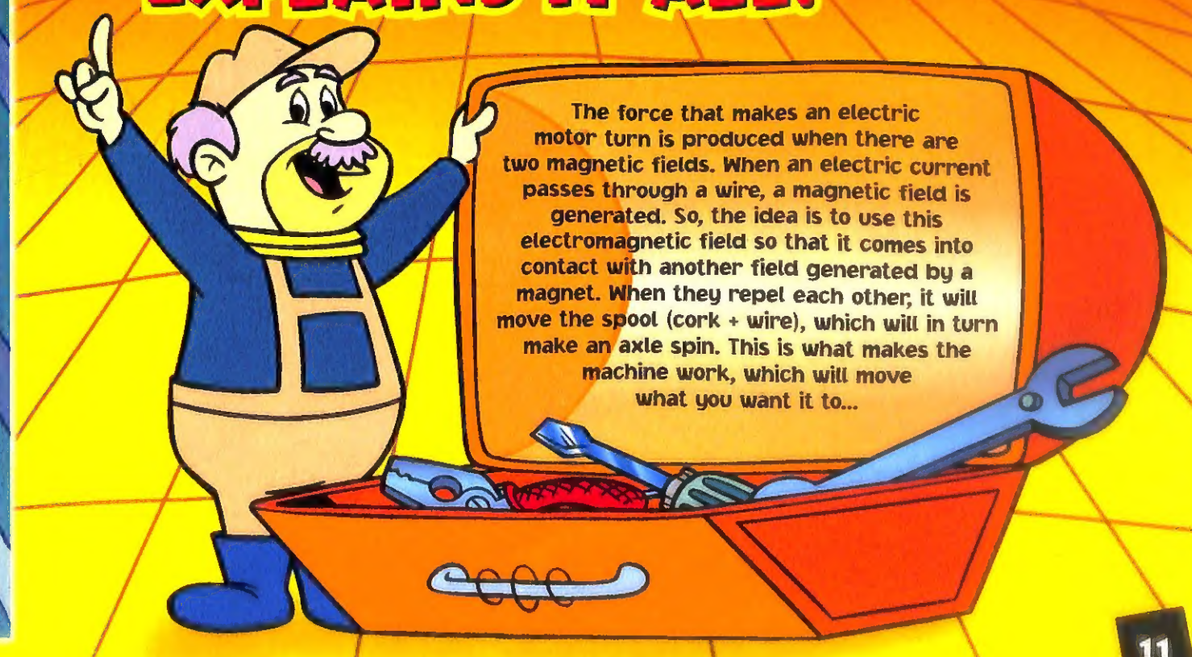
George has invited Mr Spacely and his wife to dinner, but disaster has struck...

WHAT'S HAPPENED TO ROSIE?
SHE WAS FINE AND THEN SHE SUDDENLY FELL TO THE FLOOR.
DON'T WORRY. I'M AN EXPERT AT REPAIRING MECHANICAL MAIDS. I SEE THAT HER HYPERTRONIC MOVEMENT SYSTEM IS OUT OF COMMISSION!
WE HAVE TO INSTALL AN INDEPENDENT ROTOR MECHANISM WITH A BUILT IN POWER SUPPLY.
OH...AND WHAT'S THAT, ELROY?
IT'S SIMPLE, MOM. IT'S AN ELECTRIC MOTOR!
BUT, SON. ELECTRICITY ISN'T USED ANY MORE. IT'S AN OLD POWER SOURCE.
AH, BUT HENRY ORBIT IS ALWAYS TELLING ME HOW THEY USED TO DO THINGS CENTURIES AGO. HE'S GIVEN ME SOME ANTIQUES THAT WILL HELP GET ROSIE MOVING. WANT TO SEE HOW THEY WORK?

HERE'S HOW TO DO IT!

You'll need: Board or cardboard, magnet, battery, copper wire, safety pins, cork, adhesive tape.
Put the magnet on the cardboard or a wooden board.
Stick two safety pins in the board so that the cork fits between them. Leave a gap of 1cm between them.
Wrap the wire around the cork, passing it through the ends of the cork lengthwise.
Scratch the insulation off from the ends of the wire until the bright metal shows.
Place the cork between the safety pins so that the ends of the wire go through the round eyes
The idea is for the cork to spin freely. Connect the pins to a 1.5 volt battery using some of the wire.
Give the cork a push and it will spin from the battery's power.

HENRY ORBIT EXPLAINS IT ALL!



The force that makes an electric motor turn is produced when there are two magnetic fields. When an electric current passes through a wire, a magnetic field is generated. So, the idea is to use this electromagnetic field so that it comes into contact with another field generated by a magnet. When they repel each other, it will move the spool (cork + wire), which will in turn make an axle spin. This is what makes the machine work, which will move what you want it to...

SCOOBY-DOO™

AND THE MYSTERIES OF EASTER ISLAND!

Easter Island was discovered by the Maoris, then the Dutch, then the English, then the French, then the Chileans, and then...by tourists. It was created by volcanic eruptions and is one of the most isolated places in the world. The closest Polynesian island is 3 thousand kilometers away, with the American continent over 3,200 away! To this mysterious island, shrouded in myths and legends, came Scooby, Shaggy and the gang...in search of the truth!

DID THE BIRDMAN EXIST?

The legend of Easter Island tells that there was the Tangata Manu, a being with the head of a man and the body and the wings of the Manutara bird. There's no scientific evidence to show this strange creature ever really existed, but there are many hieroglyphs of the Tangata Manu carved on rocks and in caves scattered all over the island. The people of Easter Island tell that, in olden days, in order to be the king and spiritual leader of all of the clans living on the island, a ritual was performed in honour of the Tangata Manu, which consisted of swimming to the islet where the Manutara nested, stealing the first egg, and bringing it to the island to offer to the god Make Make, creator of life and protector of the winds. While the clans awaited the return of the winner (which could take up to weeks), tribal artists carved symbols of the birdman on the rocks facing the islet, where the coronation ceremony later took place.

DISCOVERER

The first European who reached Easter Island was the Dutch sailor Roggeveen, in 1722.

THE STONE GIANTS

The primary mystery of Easter Island concerns the huge stone monuments or the Moai as they were called. Some people believe that they're the work of alien beings, but there is sufficient proof that no E.T. had a hand in their making. According to scientists, the first inhabitants of the island, the Hotu Iti, better known as the Big-Ears, carved the Moai out of rocks from the crater of the Ranu Raraku Volcano.

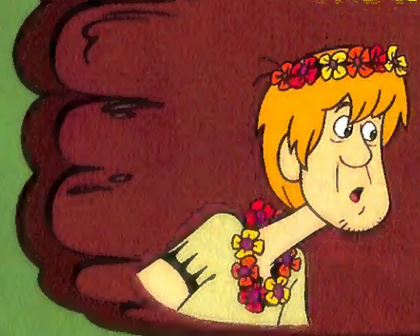
THE AHU

Nearly 1,000 men using cords and rocks carried the Moai to the top of the crater of Easter Island, and another 500 pushed them to the ceremonial centers, the Ahu. The Moai were placed with their backs to the sea, looking towards an open area where social and religious gatherings were held. Nearly 300 Ahu were eventually built, while only 20 remain today, the best known of which are Tongariki, Heki'i, and Te Pito Kura.

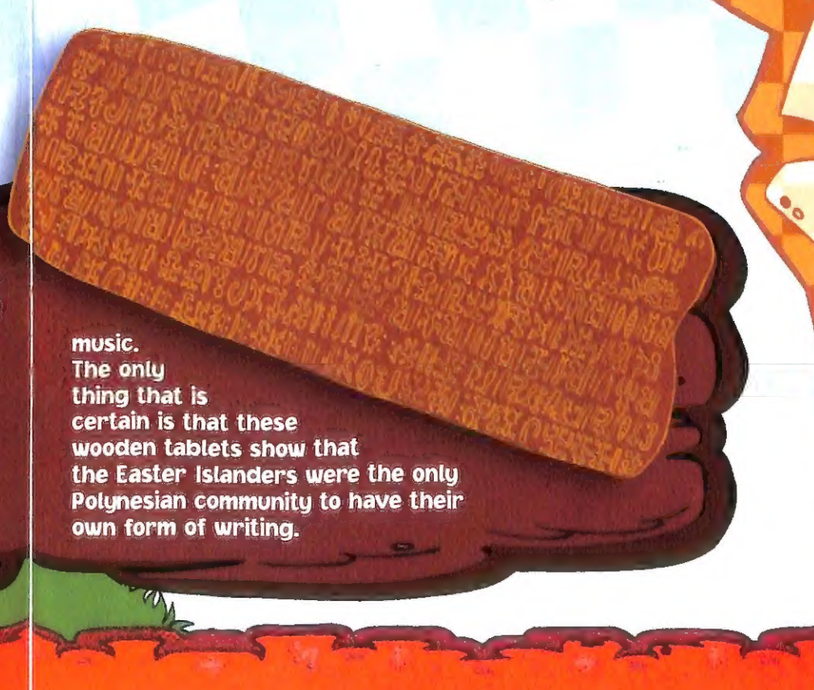
NATIONAL PARK

The Easter Island National Park was established in 1935 and contains nearly all of the island's archeological sites. Three years ago it was declared a Treasure of Mankind by the Education, Science, and Culture Organization of the United Nations.

THE INDECIPHERABLE TALKING TABLETS



The most indecipherable mystery of Easter Island is the message of the talking tablets, or Rongo Rongo, as they are called in the native language. Twenty-one have been found and they are dispersed in museums all over the world, where scientists have tried, without much success, to learn what the 600 hieroglyphs carved on the tables mean. You can see birds, fish, human bodies, and geometric shapes. Some people say that they are similar to American writing from 2,500 years ago while others believe they are song lyrics and music. The only thing that is certain is that these wooden tablets show that the Easter Islanders were the only Polynesian community to have their own form of writing.



SPACE AIRPORT

In the 1980s, NASA (the U.S. Space Agency) rebuilt the landing strip of the Mataveri Airport and added 400 meters just in case a space shuttle, launched from the Vanderberg Base in the U.S. had to make an emergency landing. There is no possibility of such a landing today because flights from that base have been cancelled.

THE LARGEST HEAD

The largest Moai in existence, had it been completed and placed upright in an Ahu, would be nearly as tall as an 8-story building and would weigh more than 30 tons.

HEAD TO HEAD!

THE HEADS HAVE THEIR BACKS TO THE SEA BECAUSE...

A) The island is more important.
B) They didn't want to miss the festivals.
C) They have no regard for invaders.
D) They are pointing to the magnetic north.

WHEN POLICARPO TORO ARRIVED AT EASTER ISLAND, THE INHABITANTS...

A) Ignored him.
B) Shouted, "How wonderful! How wonderful that the Chileans have arrived!"
C) Asked him what Policarpo meant.
D) Built a Moai in his honor.

THE MATAVERI AIRSTRIP IS FOR THE LANDING OF...

A) Airplanes.
B) Spacecraft.
C) UFOs.
D) All of the above.

COOKING with COW and CHICKEN

Ummm... Ooo la la! My favourite recipe. Delicious! Très bon!

And now, LET'S EAT!!!

You're in trouble... SuperCow will soon be here to save us...

It's hot in here!

CAUGHT IN THE GRIP OF A STRANGE OBSESSION - OR PERHAPS SIMPLE HUNGER - RED HAS CAPTURED CHICKEN AND DEBONED. HE'S THROWN THE POULTRY INTO THE POT, READY TO MAKE THEM INTO SOME FANTASTIC CREPES. NOTHING CAN SAVE THEM, UNLESS...

¡CUIDADO! SUPERCOW ¡ESTÁ AQUÍ!

SuperCow soon noticed the absence of her brother and... the smell of cooking chicken coming from Red's kitchen.

¡Cuidado, SuperVaca está aquí! (Watch out, SuperCow is here!)

What a pity! It looks like I'm not going to be eating crepes.

It's about time.

CHICKEN CREPES

Ingredients

1 chicken breast
1/2 onion
1 tablespoon of parsley
1 1/2 cup of water

1) In a pot, with 1 1/2 cups of warm water, cook a cut-up chicken breast and 1/2 onion for 15 minutes.

2) Debone the breast, remove the skin, and finely chop the meat.

In the style of the great chefs, SuperCow was very considerate of Red. Although she left him without a filling for his crepes, she prepared (in less time than it takes for a rooster to crow) a rich cake made of... milk.

¡Toma! (Take it!)

Uhhh... She forgot the yeast, and it's not even my birthday.

THE END

3) To one cup of this broth, add two tablespoons of cornflour that has first been dissolved in a bit of cold water. Cook over low heat for 3 minutes. Add the chicken and parsley.

4) Fill the crepes with the chicken and baste with mushroom gravy. Don't forget to either make or buy the crepes.

5) Put the crepes in a hot oven to heat for 7 to 10 minutes.

6) Serve warm. Chicken crepes taste great!
